

Rocketmine (Delta Drone Group) signs a €650K contract with South32 mining group

Johannesburg, 13 December 2017

Rocketmine, a South-African subsidiary of the Delta Drone Group (EPA:ALDR), won a contract representing an overall amount of 10.3 million Rand (approximately €650K) with the South32 mining group, thereby reinforcing its position as leader in drone solutions for the mining sector.

This 24-month service contract covers three of the mining group's sites in South Africa.

South32 is a global mining group with its headquarters located in Perth, Australia. It is listed on the Sydney, Johannesburg and London stock markets.

The group's sites are located in Australia, South Africa, Mozambique and Colombia.

South32 was created in 2015 pursuant to the splitting-off of some of the BHP Billiton group's mining activities.

Concerning the signature of this contract, Christian Viguié, CEO of Delta Drone, said, "In the emerging sector of civil drones for professional use, this service contract is probably the biggest in value ever signed at an international level. It is therefore important to make note of this event, as it reinforces the Delta Drone Group's position at the forefront of its field, and as one of the very few players in the sector to develop its activity on several continents simultaneously to hold key positions in a few clearly identified sectors with very high growth potential."

The Rocketmine brand is now the Delta Drone Group's only brand worldwide for the mining sector. Thanks to the many client references from the African continent, expansion of the brand is underway on other continents, specifically in Central America and South America.
